Appeals To U.S. Not To Rearm Germany

An urgent appeal to U. S. Secretary of State Acheson to use the time gained by the decision to postpone actual arming of the West German Republic to reconsider the entire issue of German rearmament was made by Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the Western Hemisphere Executive of the World Jewish Congress, who warned in New York that remilitarization of Germany would kill hopes for growth of a healthy democracy there and pose a real threat to world peace. Dr. Goldstein, in a letter to Secretary Acheson, declared that the decision, as announced in statements by Gen. Eisenhower and other Western allied officials, "must be welcomed by all friends of democracy" but pointed out that the decision represents merely a delay and not abandonment of plans eventually to rearm the Germans.

The World Jewish Congress leader outlined the role which the German army and the German military spirit played in promoting the rise of Hitler, upholding his rule and plotting World War II. He then warned: "The irrefutable lesson of history shows that the recreation of German armies would inevitably result in the buttressing of German ultra-nationalism; it would lead to the return to positions of political power of the same elements which contributed so greatly to the growth of Nazism; it would nullify the five years of Allied efforts to reeducate the German people and reorientate the German mind; it would cause great confusion in the minds of those Germans upon whom we must depend to build a decent, trustworthy Germany."

This threat is "all the more real," Dr. Goldstein said, because it is clear that the majority of the German people are still in the grip of anti-democratic ideologies. The Germans, he added, have not offered any proof that they have repudiated Nazism or, by indemnifying the surviving victims of Nazi persecution, shown that they regret the crimes of the Hitler era. Dr. Goldstein, who also voiced deep concern over the establishment of an army in Eastern Germany, urged that the Allies intensify their faltering efforts to democratize Germany and maintain full occupation controls until the Germans prove themselves completely democratic.

"Oliver Twist" Film Revised After Objections

A revised version of the controversial British film, "Oliver Twist," was accorded a Production Code seal of approval by unanimous vote of the directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc.

Some weeks ago Joseph I. Breen, administrator of the movie industry's self-regulatory censorship authority, refused to approve the picturisation of the Dickens classic, which had been attacked by Jewish groups as being "anti-Semitic." Objections centered on the characterisation of Fagin, played by Alec Guinness, who was made-up to appear like the Cruikshank drawings.

Eagle Lion Classics, Inc., distributors of the J. Arthur Rank presentation, appealed Mr. Breen's decision in an action last month before the M.P.A.A. board, offering, it was announced, to make "eliminations from the film." No details were mentioned about cuts made in the picture. The official announcement noted that the approval was by "a majority vote" and that "extensive eliminations recommended by the Production Code director were made by Eagle Lion Classics."

"Oliver Twist" had been booked by the Inter-State Circuit of Texas last November, but the engagements were canceled after the Production Code seal was withheld. Mr. Breen's action was protested by the National Council on Freedom from Censorship, the National Board of Review of motion pictures and by the New York Chapter of the American Council for Judaism.

Served In Parliament Of Austria 32 Years

Dr. Wilhelm Ellenbogen, a member of the Austrian Parliament for more than thirty years, who came to the U. S. in 1940 as a refugee from Nazism, died in Wadsworth Hospital, in New York, after a brief illness. His age was 87.

One of the best-known figures of European socialism before and after World War I, Dr. Ellenbogen was a senior member of the Austrian Social Democratic party. He was said to have been the last survivor among its founders. Born at Nieulsburg, Moravia, he studied medicine at the University of Vienna.

Dr. Ellenbogen, who was among the first Viennese doctors to fight for compulsory health insurance, became interested in the Austrian labor movement in the late eighteen eighties. He joined another physician, Dr. Victor Adler, and Karl Seotz, onetime Mayor of Vienna, and recognized as founder of the Austrian Social Democratic Party, in spreading the party's doctrines.

In 1902, he was elected to the Austrian Parliament from the workers' district of Brigittenau in Vienna. He remained a member of the Parliament until 1934. During his tenure, Dr. Ellenbogen first called for union with Germany but, as Hitler became powerful, he and his party withdrew from this movement.

It was after the post-war elections in March, 1919, that Dr. Ellenbogen became a member of Chancellor Karl Renner's cabinet, first as Under-secretary of Commerce and then as Secretary of State for Nationalization.

Together with Dr. Renner, he resigned from the cabinet in 1920. They were joined by other socialist members of the cabinet. Dr.

Flutist, 101, Taught His Family Of Musicians

Isaac Fishberg, flutist since childhood and a patriarch who counted forty-three musicians among his immediate family of more than 150, died flute in hand, in his room at the Warschauer Haym Salomon Home for the Aged, 138 Second Avenue, in New York. He was believed to be ninety-nine or 101 years old.

Although Mr. Fishberg, owing to circumstances over which he had no control, was not certain whether he was ninety-nine or 101, his 100th birthday was celebrated at the institution on December 15, 1949. Mr. Fishberg at that time played his flute for the company and observed that "a man with five generations is as good as the prophet Elijah and gets to sit on God's right hand and play his flute."

When he called Dr. Simon Guggenheimer, resident physician at the Home, Mr. Fishberg also called for his flute.

"I am feeling pretty bad, doctor," said Mr. Fishberg. "I think maybe I am dying, but I should like to play my flute."

Dr. Guggenheimer made an examination and said he guessed playing the flute wouldn't do any harm. Mr. Fishberg raised the instrument to his lips, but he couldn't play it.

Mr. Fishberg never worried about his correct age, or about going under an alias. His real name was Beckerman, but he had gone under the name of Fishberg since childhood for the same reason that his age was in doubt, says the New York Herald Tribune.

At that time the family, like other Jewish families in Russia, lived under the shadow of a decree issued by Czar Nicholas I in 1827, requiring twenty-five years' military service of Jews. It was customary in the villages for Jews to minimize the ages of their male children and a boy might remain nine or ten years old for several years. This procedure was followed by Mr. Fishberg's father, Solomon Beckerman, who changed his son's name to Fishberg.

Mr. Fishberg's father, a musician, had his own orchestra, composed mainly of relatives, and Isaac was instructed in the flute at an early age because one was needed. Later, Isaac organized his own

Jewish Labor Committee Asks Inquiry Into Liquidation Of Jewish Life By Soviet Lands

The national executive board of the Jewish Labor Committee called for a thorough inquiry by the United Nations of the cultural and spiritual destruction of Jewish life in Russia and other Soviet-dominated countries behind the Iron Curtain. The action was taken by 250 members of the board at their annual conference at Atlantic City, N.J., after they had heard a detailed report showing that no sign of "Jewish life" remains in the Soviet Union today and that the spiritual liquidation of the Jewish people in the satellite countries goes on at a rapid pace, says the New York Times.

The board, representing half a million persons, adopted a resolution authorizing the administrative committee to the Jewish Labor Committee to present before the Commission of Human Rights of the United Nations all known facts concerning the situation. Adolph Held, national chairman of the Jewish Labor Committee; Jacob S. Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, C. I. O.; and David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, A. F. L., were appointed to present the matter to the United Nations.

The report on Jewish life behind the iron curtain and in western Europe, made by Nathan Chanin of the Labor Committee's administrative committe and educational director of the Workmen's circle, contained the following findings:

Russia—No trace is left of Jewish culture. All Jewish schools have been closed; Yiddish newspapers and periodicals silenced; Yiddish writers have been liquidated; Biro-Bidjan, proclaimed an autonomous Jewish republic in 1928, no longer exists in a true sense.

Romania—The Romanian Communist party is almost completely purged of its Jewish members — 68,000 being expelled when the party was consolidated early in 1950. A stop has been put to the emigration of Jews to Israel. Anti-semitism has not died in Romania, nor has the Communist government considered it necessary to conduct a fight against it. In the past two years all Jewish schools, synagogues and newspapers have been closed down.

Poland—There are no more than 50,000 Jews left in Poland. Emigration to Israel has been banned. Zionism is regarded as a crime and treason, and Israel is a hated country, regarded as ideologically bound with the United States and Great Britain. The Jewish community, its cultural institutions and its religious activities, have been placed under the supervision of Jewish Communists.

Hungary and Czechoslovakia — Life is no better for the Jews in these countries than it is in Romania or Poland.

In contrast, it was reported that the conditions of the Jews in western Europe were more secure and that there were great expectations that of all the western European Jewish communities, France would remain the largest. Nearly 250,000 Jews are now in France.

This is the third successive year in which the J. L. C. has prepared such a report, the one in 1949 being the first documented information of anti-Semitism in Russia.

In his report, Mr. Chanin noted a case similarity between the tactics of the Soviet government and the Nazi government in fighting the Jews. He said the Soviet

Once Civic Leader In Berlin, Dies In N.Y. Exile

Hugo Heimann, ninety-one, one of the leading civic and political figures in Berlin before the Hitler regime, died at the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, 120 West 108th Street, New York. He and his wife came to America in 1939 as political exiles and subsequently became American citizens.

A Social Democrat, Mr. Heimann went to Weimar from Berlin in 1918 and assisted in founding Germany's first republic. Besides his distinguished political career, he also was noted as a scholar and the founder in 1899 of the first public library in Berlin and the second in all Germany. The first was established at Jena by the Zeiss Optical Works.

From 1918 to 1932, Mr. Heimann was a member of the Reichstag in which he served on the principal, or ways and means, committee. He resigned from the Reichstag in 1932 to make way for younger men in the government. With the rise of Adolf Hitler to power he was stripped of his personal fortune and possessions and expelled from Germany.

Before his work in the founding of the Weimar Republic after the abdication of Kaiser Wilhelm II, Mr. Heimann had been an alderman of the City of Berlin and chairman of the City Council. In a recent interview he said he believed he was the only living holder of the Freedom of the City of Berlin, an honor bestowed on distinguished citizens, says the New York Herald Tribune. The honor was revoked by the Nazis but restored after World War II.

As a youth he served an apprenticeship in a London publishing house and returned to Berlin to become a publisher of works on law and government. He left his business in 1899 to enter public life and to found Berlin's first public library.

In 1935, the Nazis removed his name from the building. During the recent war the library was destroyed in Allied bombing attacks. Last year, one of the post-war libraries in Berlin was named Surviving, besides his wife, are two sons, Dr. Eduard Heimann, an original member of the University-in-Exile established by the New School for Social Research; and Leonard Heimann, of Springfield, Mass., four grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. A daughter died in the Auschwitz concentration camp in Poland.

Says U.S. Needs Influx Of D.P.

The United States, in its own self-interest, should take in "tens of thousands" of displaced persons because of contributions they can make to the labor markets, the culture and the economy of the nation, Harry N. Rosenfield, member of the United States Displaced Persons Commission, told the national executive of the Jewish Labor Committee at Atlantic City, N. J.

Mr. Rosenfield said that the country is becoming increasingly aware that large refugee populations anywhere in the world endanger world peace. The problem of Jewish displaced persons in Europe is nearly solved, he added, but a new situation has been created by large numbers of Korean refugees.

With reference to a policy of immigration which would permit greater numbers of refugees to enter the United States, Mr. Rosenfield said:

"An interesting change in attitudes is taking place before our eyes in these tense and hectic days of defense mobilization to protect ourselves from the evil forces of totalitarianism."

"Yes, the displaced persons need us — but we need them, too. In this country, we have large and constantly growing demands for tens of thousands of people of all kinds of skills and capacities. Large and small industries are finding themselves unable to carry the loads which the demands of the times place upon them—simply because of labor shortages. Despite increased production quotas, agriculture is being curtailed, on a very large scale, because of serious labor shortages.

"Our national self-interest, as well as our international obligations, cannot permit us to be blind to the large number of skilled laborers in all major occupational categories who are available among the displaced persons and other refugees, and who are ready, willing and able to contribute their skills and genius to the tasks America has ahead."

Social Notes — Montreal

Sheldon David William Taiger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Taiger, Willowdale Avenue, was called to the Reading of the Law at the Bnai Jacob Synagogue. He is the brother of Misses Henza Roslyn and Evelyn Harriet Taiger. A dinner took place at the community hall of the synagogue, with two hundred and twenty-five guests present. The tables were decorated with white, yellow, and red roses, and candles as centrepieces. Pink and silver-tinted dogwood decorated the room. Mrs. Taiger received in a navy-blue lace gown. Miss Henza Roslyn Taiger wore a white tulle gown embroidered with seed pearl beads; and Miss Evelyn Harriet Taiger wore a light blue net gown.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Katz, 120 Gloucester Street, Cornwall, Ont., celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary at a dinner, with twenty-five guests, at their home in Cornwall. Present were their children: Mr. and Mrs. Myer Katz, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Katz, of Cornwall, Ont., sons and daughters-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Katz, of Prescott, son and daughter-in-law; Edward Katz, of Cornwall, and Jack Katz, Park Avenue, Montreal, sons; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ralph, Brodeur Avenue, Montreal, son-in-law and daughter. Their daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Feine, of New York, was unable to be present. Their grandchildren, who were all there, were: Gary and Dorothy Katz, children of Mr. and Mrs. Myer Katz; Robert Katz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Katz, all of Cornwall; and Stanley and Brian Ralph, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ralph, Brodeur Avenue, Montreal. The table held a wedding aniversary cake; and arrangements of daffodils, tulips, carnations, and irises. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leiken, of Ottawa, Ont.; Mrs. E. E. Langin, of London, Ont.; and Mr. and Mrs. N. Rosen, Jeanne Mance Street; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Labelle, Esplanade Avenue, Montreal, were other guests from out of town.

Mrs. Freda Simon, Phillips Avenue, entertained members of the immediate family at dinner, in honor of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Roslyn Simon, to Robert Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Cohen, Groveshill Place. Later, about eighty guests were received. Mrs. Simon wore a black crepe dress, fashioned with high neckline, and short sleeves, with beading on the bodice, and a draped skirt. Mrs. A. I. Cohen wore a black velvet dress, in two-piece effect, composed of a bodice of black lace over blue taffeta, a slim velvet skirt, and a matching jacket, with V-shaped neckline. Assisting in serving, Mrs. David Simon, St. Catherine Road, sister-in-law of the bride-elect, wore a black crepe dress, trimmed with plaid taffeta, and made with a high neckline, pointed collar, short sleeves, and side-draped skirt, with an inset of taffeta; and Mrs. M. Sweet, Northmount Avenue, aunt of the bride-elect, wore a black crepe dress, designed with V-shaped neckline, and draped skirt, with a rhinestone buckle. The honoree, Miss Simon, wore a two-piece black velvet, sleeveless cocktail dress. It had white lace trimming, a full skirt, and a matching, fitted jacket; with V-shaped neckline. Her corsage was of pink and white carnations. Pink carnations and snapdragons were used to decorate the house. Mrs. J. M. Greenberg, aunt of the bride-elect, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. L. Weiner; and Mr. and Mrs. H. Sweet, uncle and aunt of the bride-elect, all of Winchester, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. I. Frank and son, Allan, uncle, aunt and cousin of the groom-elect, all of Kenogami, were present. Miss Simon is a bride-elect of June 21, the marriage to take place at Young Israel Synagogue.

Misses Tillie and Rose Simon, Hutchison Street, and Miss Edna Kramer, Labadie Avenue, gave a tea at Ogilvy's, in honour of Miss Celia Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Cohen, Jeanne Mance Street, and fiancee of Arnold Myerson, Villeneuve Street West. Spring flowers were used to ornament the table. There was a presentation of breakfast set. Present were: Mrs. Saul Cohen, Jeanne Mance Street, mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. S. Schnayer, City Hall Avenue; Misses Maymie Cutler, Esplanade Avenue; Freda Goodman, Mariette Avenue; and Esta Fryfield, City Hall Avenue. Miss Cohen is a bride-elect of March 18, the marriage to take place at Chevra Kadisha Synagogue.

Miss Lillian Miller, only daughter of Mrs. H. Berman, Jeanne Mance Street, and the late Reuben Miller, and fiancee of Abe Achtman, youngest son of Reverend and Mrs. M. Achtman, Esplanade Avenue, was entertained at an engagement party at Berman's by her mother. One hundred guests were present. Mrs. Berman wore a black crepe dress, having a high neckline, and draped skirt, with embroidered pockets, and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Achtman wore a black crepe dress, with high neckline, trimmed with white, and a draped skirt, with a similar corsage. Miss Miller, the honoree, wore a navy-blue crepe dress, with white trimming at the high neckline, and on the long sleeves, and a slim skirt; and had a corsage of white roses. There were two arrangements of roses, carnations, tulips, and gladioli.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosenthal, St. Urbain Street, entertained fifty guests at dinner, at Berman's Restaurant, in celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The table was arranged with a variety of spring flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal have three children, Miss Flora Rosenthal; and Roslyn and Mortimer Rosenthal. Mrs. Rosenthal received in a black faille dress with long tight sleeves, the back of the dress having a draped panel, a string of pearls and a corsage of red roses. Miss Flora Rosenthal wore an ankle-length black cocktail dress, trimmed with rhinestone buttons; with a velvet bodice, and a low, square neckline. Her skirt skirt over taffeta, had large velvet patch pockets; and her corsage was of pink roses. Roslyn was in navy-blue taffeta, trimmed with plaid taffeta. At the dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Flora Rosenthal, to David Bercovitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bercovitch, St. Dominique Street.

Gerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Salsky, Birnam Avenue, was called to the Reading of the Law at Congregation Beth Matsoyohu Knesseth Israel Synagogue. Kiddush followed. Gerald is the brother of Marvin and Eunice; and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Mordecai Salsky, St. Urbain Street. A dinner-reception at Berman's Restaurant had forty-four guests present. Speakers were A. Rudy, St. Urbain Street, uncle of Gerald; H. Salsky, his father; and the bar-mitzvah boy. H. Grabeiner, Esplanade Avenue, entertained. The birthday cake was in the shape of the Torah. Mrs. Salsky wore a black crepe dress, designed with a V-neckline and Peter Pan collar, and a draped skirt. Mrs. H Salsky, grandmother, wore a mauve crepe dress, having a V-neckline, and slim skirt. Their corsages were of pink roses. Eunice Salsky wore a pale blue crepe dress, having a white collar, and ruffles on the skirt. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Greengrass, of Bronx, N. Y., uncle and aunt of the bar-mitzvah, were present.

THE WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS SEEKS ALL SECTIONS OF JEWISH LIFE

BY A. L. EASTERMAN, OF LONDON, ENGLAND, MEMBER OF THE WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS EXECUTIVE

It would be a very rash man who would venture to project his mental vision even a few months ahead to attempt to discern the shape of international political things to come. To ask rhetorically "who knows" is merely to assert positively "no one knows". But the very confusion and uncertainty in world affairs has impelled a certain direction and definition in national and international policies, the aim of which is not so much to find the solution of problems as to prevent being caught unawares in a crisis or emergency.

Nothing since the end of the Second World War has forced this upon men's minds more forcibly than the events in Korea. When Hitler marched into the Saar in 1934, the world gasped a little — and subsided. When his tanks overran Austria in a night in 1938, the gasps were somewhat angrier — but no one moved. When he garrotted Czechoslovakia in 1938, the world was furiously shocked, but nobody stirred to action. Individual States shirked responsibility or felt too weak to shoulder it; all States, notwithstanding the repeated slogan of "collective security", had failed to learn that this involved collective responsibility. Hitler's bombs on Poland in 1939 brought that lesson home — when it was too late to avert the catastrophe that brought death and ruin over Europe. Now in Korea the world has again been sharply brought to the sense of understanding that collective security means collective responsibility. Hence the cry from one end of the democratic world to the other is now "co-operate, co-ordinate, plan and act together."

The Jewish people in their own affairs have heard this call many times in this modern era, but only vaguely; mostly they have listened to it sceptically; often they have shut their ears to it obstinately. When Theodor Herzl launched the Zionist Organization, he declared that the whole Jewish problem was one problem and that Jews were one people. What seemed to him and his followers a self-evident elementary truth evoked an avalanche of denunciation from opponents who rejected his simple assertion as heretical and even traiterous. Herzl's declaration of "one people, one problem", meant simply a plea for Jewish co-operation in a common effort to achieve a common end for the common good.

The whole history of the Zionist movement until the creation of the State of Israel, is the story of a struggle not less against the enemies within as against those outside Jewry. The Jewish opponents of Zionism and the State, sometimes but by no means always scrupulous in their antagonism, based their hostility on the ground that this planning of the Jewish people's future disturbed and threatened their conception of Jewish life. That conception was easy, comfortable and complacent. The dispersion of the Jews, in this view, was inevitable and irresistible. There was and had to be, said the exponents of this view, a sort of predestined division of Jewries into the persecuted and the needy, on the one hand, and the protectors and the patrons on the other. There was, therefore, the argument went, no possibility, far less a need, for co-operative and co-ordinated Jewish effort; there could not even be a common problem affecting the various sections of Jewry alike or in unison. The common bond of faith was a vague and theoretical link which had no reality outside the book of common prayer.

"East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet" might have been plagiarised by Rudyard Kipling from some happily placed Western Jew. New York, London, Paris and Berlin never met Warsaw, Czernowitz and Dwinsk, except at the "Board of Guardians" on opposite sides of the table, the first group to dispense, the second to receive "relief". Anti-Semitism in Russia, Rumania and Poland were merely local eruptions, in the mind of the Western Jew, and they had no relation to the facts of Jewish life elsewhere and had no possibility of impact on the "emancipated" communities of the West except as occasion required a "protest meeting" against Jewish persecution or a banquet to inaugurate a relief fund.

These were the "traditions" which splintered the Jewish people into separate communities, preventing the cohesion of the community of world Jewry, confused the "interests" of particular Jewries with the necessities of the Jewish people as a whole, and refused to recognise that the problems of the Jews under whatever regime they lived, were of common origin and common design necessitating co-operative thinking, planning and action.

Nor did the traditional "protector" Jewries of the Western world yield their self-imposed prerogatives in the face of the self-emancipation of those of Eastern Europe from the enslavement of the ghettos. The mass migration from East to West, the rise and development of American Jewry, the changes and evolutions of the East European Jewries themselves, the emergence of great self-dependent matured communities of the British Empire, all these failed to shake the "protector" Jewries into the realisation that the Jewish "status quo" could not be maintained and that a revolutionary transformation of the Jewish people was sweeping away the cobwebs of prerogative, prestige and patronage which had divided the Jewish world into the affluent and the afflicted, the givers and the receivers.

If the Zionist movement was the first translation into practical terms of the conception of the unity of the Jewish people and the first invasion into the sacred realm of the system of "protection" in Jewish life, the World Jewish Congress was the second. Indeed, the idea of the Congress was a logical corrollary of Zionism and complementary to it. Hence it is not surprising that it was conceived in the minds of eminent Zionists, that Zionists launched it as a working proposition and that its initial leadership was entrusted to Zionists. It is not without significance that the Zionist Congress of 1935 gave it its blessing.

Basically, Zionism meant the organization of the Jewish people for the long-term aim of achieving the ultimate unity of world Jewry as a nation in Palestine. The World Jewish Congress meant and means the organization of the Jewish people for the short-term purpose of achieving unity of world Jewry until the ultimate aim is accomplished. The Congress has never sought to be a vehicle for the maintenance or perpetuation of the Diaspora. It merely accepts the fact that the Diaspora exists and that so long as it exists, there is a unity of world Jewry which the community in Israel is a part, that common interests and problems affect that unity and that these can best be dealt with through collective responsibility and by collective action.

It is not surprising that like the World Zionist Organization in its day, the World Jewish Congress should have evoked and still evokes hostility as vigorous and virulent as that which sought to destroy Zionism and prevent the establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine. As in the case of the World Zionist Organization, it is the vital content in the World Jewish Congress and the very logic of its creation which provokes the resentment of its opponents, resentment which always eschews the logic of events and rarely engages in discussion unimpaired and uncontrolled by passion and virulence resem-

Tom Gard's Note Book

It is with sincere pleasure that I return for a second series of these informal chats. It is still my purpose to share with you practical ideas that can be used to improve your garden and your home — all tried in my workshop or gleaned from my jaunts across the province.

Valance Boxes

One of my New Year's resolutions that has just been fulfilled is completing valance boxes for our living room and dining room. The job has been hanging fire for several months and it was my 12-year-old boy who finally shamed me into doing it. I'm still not certain that his mother hadn't put him up to it, but he came home from the school shop with a miniature box, complete to scale and trim! They weren't too difficult once started and did add a great deal to the appearance of the rooms. I chose dressed inch lumber as the rooms and windows are quite large and could stand the "heaviness" of this material. If your eye must watch the purse strings, use packing box material or cheap lumber and cover it with tag ends of the drapes.

Spring Is Almost Here

One other task that has been completed just in time to get under the wire is an ash sifter from the bottom section of a butter box. I had seen one over a year ago and always intended making one but didn't get around to it. Oh well, this is the season when it is of most use now that the coal furnace always seems to be getting away from me or is on its way out.

It is also time for seed flats and seed planting. I hope you are not one of those who always gets their seeds planted too early — unless, of course, you have a cold frame for the first transplanting. Follow the instructions given with the diagram for filling the flat and planting the seeds. Place the flats where they will get plenty of sunlight for sturdy plants.

You will find the wood-box idea a practical one for the cottage. The barrel has been rounded up but the project is still not completed. I'll soon be forced into it as the cottage season will be here before we know it.

Where has the opposition to Congress been most pronounced? In the first instance among those Jews who have repudiated the conception of the Jewish people as a unity which they translate as "international Jewry", using the terminology of and unwittingly repeating the scares created by the enemies of the Jewish people. These men form such groups as the American Jewish Committee, the Anglo-Jewish Association and the Alliance Israelite Universelle. It is not without significance that these bodies are the prime exponents of the doctrines of "protection" and of philanthropy as the main solvent of all Jewish problems.

As the area of alms-giving shrinks, these bodies find more and more difficulty in justifying their existence. They have no real policies to offer the Jewish people, except local patriotism and good behaviour. They have few practical propositions on Jewish affairs to put forward, except good advice and an occasional subsidy. The clearing of the debris of Jewish catastrophe in Europe and the creation of the State of Israel have stopped the tide of misery and poverty on which these groups swim to power. As the post-war years succeeded one another, they have found less and less to do in the Jewish world in which men and women as well as communities have grown up to self-reliance and in which Jewish affairs no longer take the form of a Board of Guardians. Hence, the American Jewish Committee is found frantically seeking new fields of effort in North Africa and Latin America, far from the arena of the Committee's original purposes, where it almost begs the Jewish community to accept United States dollars — a sort of unsolicited Marshall Aid for Jews — for the privilege of giving uninvited protection, the opportunity to keep its officers busy, and to fill the pages of its glossy magazines with grandiloquent reports of their performances on behalf of "foreign" Jews. It is the modern Chatukka of the Western Hemisphere.

Then there is the opposition to the Congress which comes from communities reluctant to surrender their "traditional" privilege to give counsel and protection to the other Jewries of the world. Into this category falls the Board of Deputies of British Jews, which, because it claims to have originated in 1760, cannot shake off the conviction that this fact alone has given its officers in the 20th century a sort of omniscience in Jewish affairs, and cannot bring itself to give its experience and make its contribution to the common table where all Jewish communities can be associated on terms of equality for mutual assistance and not to give patronising advice to the other.

This is not to say that there is not in both categories sincerity, good will and worthy intention to serve Jews; it is their approach to the world Jewish community that is wrong. An illustration of this attitude is that in most of these bodies there are sections specially devoted to "foreign affairs" which means the affairs of Jews residing in other lands. These bodies do not understand that in Jewish life the term "foreign" is not merely a misapplication, but is patronising and offensively so. It smacks of the days now mercifully gone, when Englishmen divided humanity into two groups "Englishmen and foreigners". It is unfortunate that there are American Jews who seem to have taken over this sentiment, with others of equal distaste. In the World Jewish Congress, "foreign affairs" can find no place and, indeed, are impossible.

Holding aloof from the World Jewish Congress or hostility to its existence is even less justified in the light of the fact that the questions affecting the rights and interests of Jews living outside Israel contain fewer and fewer issues upon which there can be difference of opinion or policy between groups or communities. The redress of wrongs done to Jews, demands for the elimination of discrimination against them, insistence upon freedom and equality in citizenship, removal of anti-Semitism — these form roughly the broad policies governing Jewish affairs in relations to the non-Jewish world. There is no conflict of opinion among Jewish organizations as to these. What matters and gives rise to controversy is the method of presenting the policies and securing its effective application in respect to particular issues and problems. It is a question of mechanics and of representation.

The principle upon which the Congress was created and operates is that presentation of the policy must be more effective if made through a consortium of Jewish organisations representing the common view of the majority of Jews, than by the separate action of a number of Jewish groups operating independently. The first me-

GOTTLIEB-SALLER

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Saller, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Saller, Mount Royal Avenue East, to Jack Gottlieb, youngest son of Mrs. M. Gottlieb, Colonial Avenue, and the late Mr. Gottlieb, took place on February 4, at half-past six o'clock, Reverend L. Syrek officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her floor-length gown of white satin and lace was made with a Peter Pan collar, trimmed with seed pearl beads, long sleeves coming to points at the wrists, trimmed with the beads, a low bodice, and a hooped skirt finishing in a long train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was arranged with a white satin poke bonnet, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, an orchid, and white streamers. Miss Goldie Wiseberg, as maid of honour, wore a floor-length strapless gown of mauve taffeta and net, with matching stole, also a mauve crown, and carried yellow and red roses. The bridesmaids were: Mrs. J. Goldberg, sister of the groom, in green taffeta and net, made with a silver bodice; Misses Estelle Saller, sister of the bride, in pink taffeta; Sandra Shames, in blue taffeta and net; Dorothy Steinberg, in aquamarine blue taffeta and net; Anita Sendel, in pink taffeta and net; and Zelda Shufman, in yellow taffeta and net. Their gowns were strapless, with matching stoles, and they had matching poke bonnets and carried nosegays, with matching streamers. Roslyn Perzow, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a floor-length off-the-shoulder dress, similar to the bride's, and made of white satin; with a bonnet of white net, and she carried a nosegay. Ralph Welkovitch was best man. Saul Martin Goldberg, nephew of the groom, was page boy. Mrs. T. Saller and Mrs. S. Goldman, grandmothers of the bride, were in the wedding procession. Variegated flowers, roses, greenery, and candelabra formed the decorations in the synagogue. "Because" was sung. Abe Kirstein's choir sang. Allan Kirstein blessed the bride and groom. For the reception in the hall of the synagogue, the tables held centerpieces of mixed flowers. Mrs. Saller, mother of the bride, received in a rust-coloured floor-length gown, made of lace and net, with matching lace hat and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Gottlieb, mother of the groom, was in a grey lace floor-length gown, with navy-blue hat and navy accessory, and a corsage of red roses. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in New York, and Philadelphia, Pa., the former travelling in a brown gabardine suit, with a white feathered hat, brown accessories, and an orchid corsage. They are living at 75 Mount Royal Avenue East. Miss Anne Mitchnick, of New York, cousin of the bride, was a guest.

WAGNER-DRACHLER

The marriage of Miss Amanda Doris Drachler, daughter of Mrs. S. M. Gardner, Grand Boulevard, to Dr. Sydney Wagner, son of Carl Wagner, and the late Mrs. Wagner, of Montreal, took place on February 14, at four o'clock, in the study of Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, of Temple Emanu-El, with the immediate family present. The couple were unattended. Mrs. Gardner gave her daughter in marriage. The bride wore a navy-blue taffeta suit, navy-blue lace hat, Persian lamb coat, and a corsage bouquet of pink rosebuds. Dr. and Mrs. Wagner left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip to New York.

TORONTOUR-RICHMAN

The marriage of Miss Lillian Richman, sister of Mrs. Harry Gasco, 283 St. Catherine Road, to Isadore Torontour, eldest son of Mrs. Frank Torontour, Waverley Street, and the late Mr. Torontour, took place on Sunday, January 7, at half-past twelve o'clock, at Bnai Jacob Synagogue, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Harry Gasco. She wore an ankle-length gown of blue Chantilly lace and nylon, made with a tightly-fitted bodice and a full-flared skirt. She had a matching hat of blue forget-me-nots and seed pearl beads; with blue tulle illusion; and carried a bouquet of baby orchids. Mrs. Harry Gasco, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, in a navy-blue lace ankle-length dress, with gold-colored accessories, and carried a streamer-style bouquet of yellow roses. Ralph Torontour, brother of the groom, was best man. The groom was given in marriage by his mother. Standards of pink roses and carnations surrounded the canopy and the pews of the centre aisle were marked with white pillars which supported large white lighted candles, the bases of the candles being decorated with floral arrangements. Apple blossoms decorated the altar. A choir sang. For the luncheon in the hall of the synagogue, the bride's table was centred with a three-layer wedding cake arranged with white pompoms and pink snapdragons. There was music and dancing. Grace was started by Reverend A. H. Greenberg and finished by Cantor J. Rosenzweig. Mrs. Torontour, mother of the groom, received in a brown and cinnamon-coloured dress, with brick-coloured accessories, and a handbag which was decorated with a horseshoe of yellow baby roses. Mesdames C. N. Denburg, A. H. Greenberg, and J. Rosenzweig were present at the luncheon. The bride and groom left on a wedding trip to New York and Atlantic City, N. J., the former wearing a grey wool dress, with orchid-coloured accessories, and a full-length Persian lamb coat; also an orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. I. Torontour are residing on Barclay Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Cashman, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, and their son, Frank Emil, of Atlantic City, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mintz, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, and son, Frank, of Toronto, Ont.; Morris Torontour, uncle of the groom; Mrs. H. Lazar, and Miss Zelma Torontour, cousins of the groom, all of Ottawa, Ont.; Mrs. Jack Claman, aunt of the groom, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weiss and son, Frank; and Miss Beverley Claman, cousins of the groom, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gordon, of Waukeegan, Ill.; and Mrs. Irving Fisch, of Chicago, Ill., were wedding guests.

ORCHESTRA LEADER TO TAKE LEAVE

Leonard Bernstein has decided to take a long sabbatical leave from concert appearances after the end of his current conducting schedule on April 15. He will remain away from the podium for a least a year and a half. During this time, he said he will "take stock, gather inner sustenance" and continue his activities as a composer. He has already refused invitations to appear next season with several American orchestras, and also for appearances abroad in Salzburg and at La Scala, in Milan.

Mr. Bernstein, who is thirty-two years old, was engaged by the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra as its assistant conductor in 1943. He made his debut with this organization on November 12 of that year, substituting for Bruno Walter at a few hours' notice, and won warm praise from the reviewers. During the next two months, he will conduct the Israel Philharmonic in twelve more concerts of its American tour and in five concerts in the Scandinavian countries. He will then fly to Mexico.

have you read any good LABELS lately?

Labels make good reading for those who seek good eating.

A canned beans label for instance! Does it say "Oven-Baked"?

The ingenuity of man has found nothing to compare with oven-baking to give beans mellowness and nut-like flavour. The Heinz label reads "Oven-Baked Beans in Tomato Sauce —and it's the grandest tomato sauce you ever tasted!

Mm—a "mechaya"! Read the Heinz label!

Glass Making Returns To An Ancient Home

BY LOIS MILLER

Jews have been, from a very early period, pioneers in the field of glass artistry and manufacture. Palestine, after the exodus from Egypt, became one of the centres of the ancient glass industry. The Egyptians, who may be said to have originated the fabrication of glass, transmitted to many of their Jewish slaves techniques of glass manufacture, and these skilled craftsman carried their training with them in their journey to their homeland. (Finds from a Jewish grave of the 6th century B.C., indicate that early Palestinian glass work was very much in the style and spirit of the Egyptian work of the same period.)

During the ensuing centuries Jewish glassmaking attained to the highest levels of artistry, and concurrently, the industry became more and more important in the over-all pattern of the Jewish economy. The "glass of Hebron" (transported by Phoenician sailors) was known and coveted throughout the ancient world. By the 2nd and 3rd centuries A.D., remains from slag heaps and remnants from glass houses near Jerusalem, Tiberias, and Nazareth tell us that the Jewish glass houses were of more than considerable size and output.

There were two major aspects to the significance of glass manufacture in this early period. The first factor and the one of greatest importance was the accessibility of the necessary natural resources. The sands of the River Belus are mentioned in many early accounts of Israel. In commenting on the verse from Deuteronomy XXXIII, 19, "For they shall suck the abundance of the seas, And the hidden treasures of the sand," Targum Jonathan says that the sands are a treasure for from them can be made "mirrors and vessels of glass".

The geographer Strabo (53 B.C. to 25 A.D.) tells that between Acre and Tyre there was an area of glass sand and mention is made of this also by Joseph Flavius and Tacitus. Frederic Neuberg, author of Glass and Antiquity, points out that these glass sand deposits were the results of the khamseen winds piling up the fine sands of the North African and Arabian deserts along the east coast of the Mediterranean.

This natural resource was of particular importance in earliest times, as transport was so difficult. (It is of interest to realise that today the Palestinian glass industry depends upon sand from Belgium. Although there are more than abundant deposits of satisfactory glass sand in the Negev, the lack of adequate road-systems has as yet held up Israeli use of its own natural resources. Leaders in the industry say, however, that in a very short time, they expect to be using Negev and not Belgian sand.)

Another aspect of early Jewish glass manufacture (and for that matter in the many years of Jewish glass manufacture in the Diaspora) was the ubiquitous use of religious symbology for decorative purposes. Other primitive peoples produced their ornamentation more or less from the theme of their means of making a living — fishing, hunting, agriculture, etc. From earliest times, however, the Jews so intrinsically involved with their religion and its ritual, produced glass objects decorated with the stylized symbols of religious observance; the vessels, candlesticks, etc. appeared not only on objects used in the temples, but also on functional instruments of daily living. It is, of course, true that not all Jewish ornamentation was derived from religious sources, but this is a very early and continuing theme in Jewish glass creations.

When the Jews diffused out of the "basin of humanity", they took with them a highly developed knowledge of the manufacture of glass. Thus, it was Jewish glass workers (along with the Syrian) in the 4th century who formed the backbone of the glass industry in Constantinople. Jewish travellers from Tyre and Hebron founded the old, famous Venetian glass industry in the 9th century. The oldest Jewish settlement in Germany at Trier also was one of the first glass houses in the Rhine area. In turn at Cologne and at Andernach, the Jews brought with them the finest glass blowing and moulding techniques and initiated one of Germany's oldest industries.

It is peculiarly fitting that the Phoenicia Glass Works Ltd. had announced in 1949 the beginning of a third plate glass manufacturing plant. This is, along with many other aspects of Israel life now, a long-awaited and somehow fitting continuation of an age-old Jewish tradition. The Phoenicia Glass Works is the only one of its kind in the Middle East. This third plant will for the first time (since the Phoenicians distributed Jewish glass manufacture over the ancient world) put the Israeli glass manufacturing industry on a basis where it can successfully compete in international export markets. (In 1946, although ceramic ware, glass, and manufactured quarry products were the fourth largest export item from Israel, the country was still importing more in this category than it was exporting.)

Phoenicia Ltd. is controlled by Nur Industries and Crafts Co., Ltd. — holding company for part of Solel Boneh, the General Contracting Office of the Jewish Federation of Labour. In addition to Phoenicia, which is the only producer of plate glass in the Middle East, the Histadrut has two other glass companies: Phoenicia Instruments Ltd., which operates a plant in connection with the Physics Department of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem for the manufacture of scientific glass instruments; and Glass Containers Manufacturing Co., which is the largest plant in Palestine for the manufacture of pressed glass, i.e. bottles, jars, demijohns, lamp glasses and tumblers.

Phoenicia's record, since it took over the plant and equipment of a company which had begun to manufacture plate glass in 1936 and failed, has been one of continual expansion and modernisation of production. In 1942-3 Phoenicia's annual output was 150,850 metres annually. In 1945-6 it was 670,000. The new plant alone, which is equipped with the newest type machinery and oven, will be able to produce 2,500,000 metres a year.

At the same time that Phoenicia Co. made the announcement about its third plant, it also told the papers that: Experiments on fine glassware are being made by two young Italian expert glass-blowers brought by Phoenicia from Venice — Pietro and Pasquali Sylvestri, members of a famous old glass-making family.

And so Israel sees another of the earliest Jewish traditions coming home from the Diaspora.

ARMY CHIEF SEES NO PEACE AHEAD

Maj. Gen. Yigael Yadin, Chief of the Army General Staff, said at Tel Aviv that there was little prospect of early peace with Israel's Arab neighbors and announced that the call-up of Army reservists and the mobilization of civilian equipment would be on a larger scale in 1951 than in 1950.

He attributed the deadlock over peace to the Arab states' unreadiness to recognize the fact that the state of Israel had arisen and to acknowledge their failure to destroy the state by force. General Yadin said he was thankful to the Arabs for reminding the Israelis from time to time that there was no peace.

Because of her geographical position, he went on, Israel must be prepared to cope with any surprise by placing forces at the right place at the right time.

ANGEL WITHOUT WINGS

BY BEN STERNBERG, REGIONAL SUPERVISOR OF JEWISH WELFARE BOARD ARMED SERVICES OPERATIONS

"He's an angel without wings."

The chaplain leaned against the swivel and the chair tilted slowly rearward. His hands folded behind his head, he slowly turned, his gaze directed through the window at his side, out into the parade ground where hundreds of dungaree-clad recruits wheeled and marched, kicking up Kansas dust in spurts that seemed to march, too.

"Yes, that man Saroff is an angel without wings. I've been around the world with this army. As Protestant chaplain, I've held services for Jews in the absence of a Jewish chaplain. I've probably had as many religious items mailed to me by the National Jewish Welfare Board as have been sent to most Jewish chaplains, and I've worked with Jewish communities all over the globe. But never, no sir, never, have I seen the likes of this man Saroff, a one man committee, the chairman, secretary, treasurer, host, worker, and what have you."

Chaplain Francis Jones shook his greying head at me, with the slowness typical of abject wonderment. Although he, himself, Jones, has been the good shepherd for the Jews at Ft. Riley's 10th Division, arranging on-post services, leave, transportation, preaching sermons, gaining the love and respect of all Jewish GI's who benefited by his conscientious representations in their behalf, he considered his offerings puny by comparison with those of Saroff.

Saroff was waiting for me in Manhattan, Kansas, a town of about 15,000 near Ft. Riley. One man with three prospering businesses which demanded every waking second of his time, Saroff saw to it that these enterprises were shelved as long as I was there, I'd seen his name in the long list of Midwest JWB Armed Services Committee chairmen. The list is cold, impersonal. You can't read between the lines. Now, the name, Sam Saroff, takes on a great significance. It encompasses a man who represents the one Jewish family in Manhattan; a man who alone, serves all of the Jews at one of the Nation's key military installations, a man who sends for the salamis and corned beef from far-off Kansas City, whose family (wife and mother-in-law) spend all day Thursday baking items for the weekly Oneg Shabbat, and who religiously attends the Friday night services on post, a man who meets with the men, counsels with them, laughs and fraternizes.

I asked whether or not he needed financial assistance. He said, "Shucks, naw. I can handle it." I suggested my making some arrangements for men in Kansas City for the past High Holy Days. He said, "Heck, no. I can handle it." And he did. He arranged the services at Hillel at Kansas State. He bought all of the food for the Yom Kippur break-the-fast at Hillel. He took 25 men into his own home.

He walked me to the bus station. I could not resist passing on Chaplain Jones' comment. He stopped. He reviewed his full length reflection in a store window. The reflection of a huge, powerful body, a massive head. He grabbed my arm, started us off to the station. A great chuckle shook him. "Pretty big, pretty heavy for an angel, huh?" he said.

sound of a choir singing in unison is more harmonious as well as more sonorous than a number of voices singing the same song independently at the same time.

The Congress is well aware that there are gaps in its structure. Of course it is not the most perfect organization that man could devise. It has its defects just as every other organization and even governments have. The gaps and defects could, however, be easily and quickly closed and removed, and the representation of world Jewry could be effectively completed, if there were good will and a spirit of true co-operation for the common Jewish good among those bodies which now stand aloof. This community of world Jewry is a great cause and a vital necessity.

The World Jewish Congress inaugurated this cause in 1936 as a method of preparedness so that the Jewish people should not be caught unawares in the crisis then all too abundantly clear in its approach. The Congress has made a remarkable progress towards closing the ranks of Jewry in a co-operative world organization. It advances steadily towards the ultimate goal and it calls to those Jewries still outside to complete the circle of comradely association in equality.

In making that call, and to enable those who are apart to answer it, the Congress does not bind itself to rigid rules or to the technical niceties of constitutional formulations. There is no irrevocable or unchangeable dogma in the construction of the World Jewish Congress or its procedure. The door to a fully representative World Jewish Assembly is wide open to receive all shades of Jewish opinion, all sections of Jewish life, and all forms of Jewish organisation ready to play their part in a co-operative effort on behalf of the Jewish people.

THE WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS SEEKS

thod spells co-operation, the second confusion. The first is the method now recognised in and by Jewish communities in dealing with their own affairs. Hence the Board of Deputies in various countries of the British Commonwealth and the world. It is the modern democratic way of administration and operation in all phases and forms of organised society.

In international affairs we have the United Nations, the Atlantic Pact, the Council of Europe and the Cominform. In commerce we have the great international federations of traders, financiers and manufacturers. In industry, we have the great organisations for human welfare. In the religious world we have the great groupings of the Churches. It is simple, elementary and essential that a people like the Jews, dispersed but with common interests, must co-operate in a world of co-operation in defence of these interests and of their rights as men and citizens.

This conduct of Jewish affairs can no longer be effectively carried on by way of a platform speech, no matter how eloquent, or a resolution, no matter how well phrased, or the protest, no matter how vehement.

Like others in this highly complicated world, Jewish affairs can be properly conducted only on the basis of high-level planning, policy-making and technical efficiency by representative institutions acting with authority and speaking with a collective voice. This is what governments and international bodies require when representations are made to them. There is no room today in Jewish life for dilettantism and part-time leadership. Jewish affairs are now a full-time job, skilfully planned and efficiently done. There is no place today for several Jewish spokesmen to proclaim the same theme at the United Nations or elsewhere; the

CLASS IN COOKERY

one-quarter pound butter — one-half pound cottage cheese pinch of salt
one cup flour

Cream butter and cottage cheese, add salt and flour. Mix thoroughly until it forms a stiff dough, and set it in the refrigerator for thirty minutes.

Filling

one and one-half pound cottage cheese — one-half cup raisins pinch of salt — one-quarter cup sugar two tablespoons flour — two eggs
one teaspoon cinnamon

Mix above ingredients thoroughly for filling. Sugar and raisins are optional. Remove dough from the refrigerator and, taking a small piece at a time, roll as thinly as possible. Brush with melted butter, then place filling on the dough and roll up. Place in a buttered baking tin. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Can be served hot, or cold, with sour cream. Slice when baked.

Mrs. B. Zelman,

1925 Clinton Avenue, Montreal.

PRIZE CHOCOLATE CAKE

two and one-quarter cups cake flour — two squares unsweetened chocolate one teaspoon baking soda — two eggs one-half teaspoon salt — one teaspoon pure vanilla one-half cup shortening — one-half teaspoon pure almond flavouring two cups brown sugar
one cup sour milk

Cream shortening, add sugar, cream well; add two lightly beaten eggs. Sift flour, baking soda, and salt. Combine the vanilla, and almond flavouring with the sour milk. Add one-third of the mixed dry ingredients, to the shortening mixture, then half of the milk mixture, and continue alternating until all ingredients are combined with shortening. Lastly, melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler, or in a saucepan over water, and mix well into the batter. Pour into a nine by ten inch pan, two inches deep, which has been buttered, and bake in a 350-degree oven for three-quarters of an hour, or more.

Icing

two cups icing sugar — three tablespoons boiling water two tablespoons cocoa — one-quarter teaspoon almond flavouring two tablespoons butter
one-half teaspoon vanilla few grains salt

Beat until creamy, and spread on cake when cool.

Mrs. Max Smith,

535 Palmerston Boulevard, Toronto.

APPLE PIE

two and one-quarter cups sifted flour — six tablespoons cold water three-quarters cup shortening — six large apples one teaspoon salt — one cup sugar
one teaspoon cinnamon

For the pastry, mix water with all but one-third cup of flour, until it forms a paste. Add to it the remaining flour, shortening and salt, which have been well blended together. Divide dough into four parts, and set aside in refrigerator for a short time. Peel, core, and slice apples; add to them the sugar and cinnamon. Roll out dough on floured board or floured wax paper. This recipe will make two pies. Line each ungreased pie plate with a portion of the dough. Sprinkle each crust with one-half teaspoon sugar, and press it onto the dough. Add the filling; roll out remaining portions of dough, and cover pies, sealing edges with cold water. Puncture top. Bake for ten minutes in 450-degree oven; and for thirty minutes, at 350 degrees.

Mrs. M. Gordon,

5476 Esplanade Avenue, Montreal.

This recipe won honorable mention in its class in the contest sponsored by Montreal's Laurentian Chapter Number 520, Bnai Brith Women.

Yummy! Chelsea Bun Loaf

A treat you can make easily with new fast DRY Yeast

Now you have Fleischmann's Fast Dry Yeast, forget about the oldtime hazards of yeast baking! Always at hand—always full-strength and fast rising! Keep a month's supply in your cupboard! Make this delicious Chelsea Bun Loaf—cut in slices for buttering, or separate the buns.

CHELSEA BUN LOAF

Make 3 pans of buns from this one recipe—dough will keep in refrigerator for a week.

Scald ⅔ c. milk, ¼ c. granulated sugar, 1½ tsps. salt and ⅓ c. shortening; cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, measure into a large bowl ½ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 mins., THEN stir well. Add cooled milk mixture and stir in 1 well-beaten egg. Stir in 3 c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 2½ c. once-sifted bread flour. Knead on lightly-floured board until smooth and elastic. Cut off ⅓ of dough, knead into a smooth ball, place in greased bowl, grease top of dough, cover and store in refrigerator until wanted. Shape remaining ⅔ of dough into a smooth ball, place in greased bowl and grease top. Cover and set in warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Cream 3 tbs. butter or margarine and blend in ½ c. brown sugar (lightly greased down), 1½ tsps. ground cinnamon and 3 tbs. corn syrup; spread about ⅓ of this mixture in bottom of a greased loaf pan (4½" x 8½") and sprinkle with pecan halves. Punch down risen dough and roll out into an 8" square; loosen dough. Spread with remaining sugar mixture and sprinkle with ½ c. raisins. Loosely roll up like a jelly roll. Cut roll into 6 slices. Place in prepared pan. Grease tops. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderate oven, 350°, 25-30 mins. Let stand in pan for 5 mins. before turning out.

Harold Newman, 3841 Melrose Avenue, Montreal, Quebec, told L. A. Couture, of Ottawa, Ontario), was awarded second prize in the annual Canadian Bar Review essay contest. Mr. Newman wrote a brief on "An Historical and Judicial Analysis of Article 1301 of the Quebec Civil Code". This article prohibits any contract whereby a wife undertakes to guarantee her husband's debt. It has been the cause of considerable controversy since it was first enacted in 1840 and there are many who advocate its elimination from the law. Mr. Newman's brief on "Breach of Statute as the Basis of Responsibility in the Civil Law" won first prize in a similar contest in September, 1949, with the sum of $1,000. The fact that Mr. Newman is bilingual facilitated research for this study in the French writings and commentaries of the Code Napoleon. He is head of the Notre Dame de Grace Community Council parks and playgrounds committee, and program chairman of the West Hill Home and School Association; also a member of the Royal Astronomical Society and a director of the Canadian Technion Society.

CASSEROLE OF RICE AND LIVER

one pound calf liver
one cup rice
one quart water
two tablespoons fat
two cups stock
one teaspoon caramel sauce two tablespoons browned flour
salt and pepper and crumbs

Boil the rice in water and mash smooth with fat. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Line well-greased casserole with the mixture, pressing paste firmly against bottom and sides, and leaving large hollow in centre. Set in cold place until firm. Boil liver and chop fine, season with salt. Heat soup stock seasoned with caramel. Make brown sauce with fat, brown flour and soup stock. Add minced liver, fill hollow in centre of rice with liver mixture, sprinkle with crumbs and brown in oven. Caramel can be made by browning one cup sugar over direct heat, and gradually adding one cup hot water until thickened.

Ellenbogen remained active on the party's board of directors until 1934, when he was arrested after the coup d'état of the Dollfuss Government.

Released from prison three months later, he was forced to live in retirement. When the Nazis came to power, Dr. Ellenbogen fled. In 1939 he made a temporary stay in France, coming to the United States shortly after.

In World War II he served as a member of the Austrian Labor Committee in New York which kept contact with exiled groups and the Austrian underground. Dr. Ellenbogen later became honorary chairman of the Friends of Austrian Labor.

Dr. Ellenbogen, who was not married, lived at 221 Sherman Avenue. He is survived by a brother, Leopold, and a sister, Gisela.

MARRIAGES

SHERMAN-WEISFIELD

The marriage of Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Weisfield, 67 Millwood Road, to Bernard Sherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Sherman, of Hamilton, took place on Sunday, January 28, at half-past seven o'clock, at Murray House. Rabbi Judah Washer officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of white tulle and Chantilly lace. Fashioned with portrait neckline, and long lace sleeves, it had a lace peplum over the full bouffant tulle skirt. Her tulle fingertip veil was caught to a Dutch cap, and she carried a white Bible, adorned with a white orchid. Miss Norma Sherman was maid of honour in a strapless, powder-blue net gown, with matching stole. She wore a headpiece of red roses and vari-coloured spring flowers, and carried a matching bouquet. Dr. Alfred Sherman was best man. The ushers were: Joseph Rochwerg, Henry Katz, Lorn Sacrab, J. Sherman, Percy Weinberg, C. Katz, M. Dulberg, and Bernard Mandel. The bride's mother wore a powder-blue crepe dinner dress, with lace yoke, and corsage of red roses and white carnations. The groom's mother was in a salmon-coloured taffeta dress, with portrait neckline; and had Talisman roses in her hair. For the motor trip to New Orleans, Louisiana, and Miami Beach, Florida, the bride travelled in a brown and green checked suit, with green accessories, and a Russian broadtail jacket, with a white orchid corsage. They are residing in Hamilton.

You And The Synagogue

The traditional function of the synagogue has to do with prayer, study, and assembly. The modern synagogue assembles people to attend forum lectures and a wide variety of social gatherings. However, prayer, synagogue worship, is primary. To be listed as a member of a holy congregation in Israel and to fail in regular attendance at worship paves the way to spiritual Jewish poverty.

Where else will the Jew in the diaspora obtain aspirations of the soul if not in the worship at a common holy altar where the prayers and songs of the ages are sung? Where else will the Jew find renewal if not by retreating to the sanctuary and there, in communion with God, recharge the weakened batteries, weakened by the noise and hurley burley of a materialistic and mechanistic age? Alas, there are Orthodox, Conservative, and Reform Jews by the multitudes who indulge in the luxury of giving the synagogue absent treatment.

These only on "occasions" seek the sanctuary, and often can not find renewal even when they enter God's house because the vulgarity of daily living and neglect of the soul have destroyed their sensitiveness to the spiritual. No great religion is possible without regular prayer and meditation. It was the Jew who in the dim antiquity created public worship, and woe to any generation of Jews that fails to sing with the ancient psalmist the hallowed words: "I rejoiced when they said unto me, let us go up to the house of the Lord."

We Jews of the West have done well in raising funds for our needy, but the source of giving will tend to dry up unless we emphasize the spiritual motivations in life of prayer and study. Certainly there is no hope for us if we become torahless!

It is the responsibility of the synagogue to educate the children and youth in Torah. But for too long have we tended to "infantilize" the synagogue and thought that as long as the children were prepared for bar-mitzvah and confirmation that was a lot. But the synagogue of old had as its programme classes for adults and this tradition of Beth Midrash must be re-established in modern life for both men and women. What healing our tired and tried business men would find in attending regularly classes in Bible, Talmud and Jewish history. Full membership in a synagogue can truly be attained when men and women partake of the full programme of the sanctuary.

How many are the synagogues in our city where men and women foregather regularly in the study of the Book of Books? Women and men, too, have leisure for everything, it would seem, but the study of Torah. The nerves of the people are not steadied, as some think erroneously, by card playing for hours. Nervousness is rather increased by it. But much strength and comfort and healing can be had by partaking of our great and sacred literature. There is an awakening among many to return to the sources of Jewish inspiration. May their number increase in the return to the spiritual fortress, the synagogue, and partake in the blessings of prayer, Torah, and assembly.

A Distinguished Christian Teacher

There died last week in Hollywood, California, a distinguished pulpiteer and novelist, Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas. We came to know and admire this man of religion and letters during his sojourn among us here in Montreal, when he occupied the pulpit of St. James United Church. Dr. Douglas spent four years in our metropolis and it was here, after reaching a thirtieth anniversary in the ministry, that he resolved to relinquish the pulpit and devote himself to writing, for he discovered that he could reach the unchurched through the novel and through that medium bring to them the sublime truths of religion.

Our friend was a great story-teller as is revealed by his books which became best sellers. To have known this man who was possessed of wisdom and such a fine sense of humour was indeed an experience. When in Montreal he was a member of our group of religious teachers known as the "O.E.A." How charmed we were all by his presence at meetings and what enrichment he brought to our intimate gatherings where to this day we break bread together and encourage each other in our labours in the vineyard of the Lord.

Here in Montreal Lloyd Douglas seemed to have disturbed a good many die-hards and conservatives. I had occasion even to defend him when some members of the flock charged him with disturbing them. But his preachments were all to the good, including the disturbances he brought to those who were at ease in Zion. We mourn the passing of this fine Christian teacher who, through his talents of mind and heart, inspired multitudes to strive for the higher values of life. May God bless his memory.

orchestra, which had wide repute in the Ukraine and played at parties given by nobility and at local festivals. When Mr. Fishberg came to New York in 1922, almost all his family had preceded him and some had won reputations as musicians.

He left Proskurov, Russia, for America when a series of pogroms made it unsafe for him. On the lower East Side, he earned a living before his retirement in 1930 by teaching violin and flute and by playing in Jewish cafes and restaurants in the evening.

For the 100th birthday party in 1949, James C. Petrillo sent an eight-piece orchestra to honour the oldest member of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians. Four of the orchestra were his descendants, as were one-third of the 500 guests. Mr Fishberg recalled then that of the 150 Fishbergs, eleven were violinists, two violists; one a double bass player, one a flutist, two saxophonists, five trumpet players, one clarinetist, twelve pianists, a harpist, a drummer, two mandolinists and four sopranos.

The sons were Mischa Mischakoff, the concertmaster of Arturo Toscanini's N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra; Fishel, double bass player; Nathan, violinist; Tobias, viola player; Yascha, violinist, and William, amateur violinist, who is in the jewelry business. With the exception of William, all had played with outstanding symphonic orchestras here and abroad.

Three of Mr. Fishberg's daughters, Pearl, Rebecca and Liza, play musical instruments, and a fourth Zina, is a soprano. The others, Beasie and Deborah — the latter a resident of Argentina — like many of their brothers and sisters, have children who are accomplished musically. Another daughter, Rose, died in 1920 after taking honors as a harpist at the Imperial Conservatory in Petrograd.

Laud Early Immigrants As Builders Of U.S.

Asserting that the history of the "peopling of the United States has been too long neglected," Lee M. Friedman, of Boston, Mass., president of the American Jewish Historical Society, declared at the Society's 49th annual meeting, at New York: "Immigrants are not merely so much bone, sinew, and manual skill. Their customs, ideas, and ideals are vital contributions to an enriched American civilization."

The 59-year-old organization, sponsored by the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), met at the New York Historical Society and at the Jewish Museum. In commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the death of Major Mordecai Manuel Noah, colorful figure in early 19th century America, the New York Historical Society had on display an exhibition dealing with early American Jewish culture.

From the earliest days in the country, Mr. Friedman said, immigrants have been a fertilizer "feeding the roots of America's greatness." This land of liberty, the speaker went on, has not been built by any one racial group. Minorities of many stocks and from many lands coming to the U.S. at different times have all joined together to build "this new American nation dedicated to the ideal of the worthwhileness of every individual without regard to race or religion."

In an address dealing with American views of the Jew at the opening of the 20th century, Oscar Handlin, professor of history at Harvard University, drew a picture of the change in attitude toward the Jew that took place at that time. "The ten years after 1890," Professor Handlin said, "were not only free of anti-Semitism but were actually marked by a distinct philo-Semitism." However, drastic world changes and pressures affecting Americans at that time brought about a transformation in attitude, the former favorable outlook being supplanted with one of hostility and suspicion. Later, in the "portentous years 1913 to 1920," Professor Handlin observed, "anti-Semitism became a considerable factor in this country."

Discussants of Professor Handlin's paper were Dr. Joshua Bloch, chief of the Jewish division of the New York Public library, and Elisha M. Friedman, economist and author. Greetings were delivered by R. W. G. Vail, director of the New York Historical Society, the host group.

Dr. Robert Gordis, rabbi of the Rockaway Park, N. Y., Hebrew Congregation, dealing with the Noah centenary, asserted that an untold number of lives might have been saved from Hitler's holocaust if the leaders of west European Jewry had possessed some of the "grandiose vision of Major Noah." Referring to Noah's plan to settle large numbers of Jews in America, Dr. Gordis hailed Noah as "a superb symbol of the American Jew of the future."

"The stamp of greatness in Noah's life," Dr. Gordis said, "is to be sought in his vision of the restoration of the Jewish people to Palestine by their own effort." Major Noah, in this connection, called on the Christian world for aid and support. Further, he was the first to propose the acquisition of land through purchase "and to base his hopes on the political conditions of Europe and the Middle East. In short, Noah was a political Zionist a half-century before Herzl." The infant republic of Israel, Dr. Gordis said, would do well "to honor the memory of one of its spiritual progenitors."

Dr. Leo Honor, educator, of Philadelphia, Pa., speaking on "fifty Years of Jewish Education in the United States," observed that the effort to make Jewish education a meaningful and significant experience "involves the consideration of Jewish education not as an isolated process, but as one which is in continuous relation with the total educational experience of the child being educated."

Another anniversary observed by the Society was the golden jubilee of the Jewish Morning Journal, New York Yiddish daily. Dr. Mordecai Soltes, executive director of Yeshiva University, and historian of Yiddish periodical literature in America, said: "Throughout its career, the Journal has assumed an active role in supporting all efforts to strengthen the system of Jewish education in America without regard to differences in ideological outlook."

Also discussed were the 150th anniversary of the oldest Ashkenazic congregation on this continent, the Hebrew German Society Rodeph Shalom, of Philadelphia, and the 100th anniversary of the Jewish community of Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Jeanette W. Rosenbaum, historian, of Philadelphia, read a paper on the former institution, and Rabbi Malcolm H. Stern, of Norfolk, presented a paper on the latter community.

JEWISH LABOR

government was using Jews as the official scapegoat. Persons coming from Russia recently have told of the "great general dread in which the Jews in Russia live," he added.

Mr. Chanin said, "The U. N. special investigating commission which fights against slave labor has voiced its protest against the U. S. S. R. for keeping millions of people in concentration camps where they work under the most shocking and inhuman conditions."

Mr. Held, in his keynote address, there was no people on earth that has suffered as much from Communism as has the Jews. Isaiah M. Minkoff, executive director of the National Community Relations Advisory Council, told the delegates "Communism is the most insidious enemy that we have ever faced," but at the same time warned against making "an unholy alliance" with reactionaries and anti-Semites to combat Communism.

Synagogues Plan To Reach Adolescents

A three-fold program, aimed at reaching "the 75 per cent of the total Jewish adolescent population in the United States who have not received any form of Jewish education in their earlier years," was outlined at a conference at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, 3080 Broadway, New York. More than 200 rabbis and Jewish educators from all parts of the U. S. and Canada, affiliated with 450 congregations of Conservative Judaism, attended the special meeting.

Observing that young persons 18 years of age were now called upon to assume the full responsibilities of adulthood, Dr. Moshe Davis, dean of the seminary's Teachers Institute, told the conference that "we must find ways and means of providing adequate educational and spiritual bases for these young people during the critical years of their adolescence in order to serve their best interests, as well as the interests of our faith and our nation."

Dr. David urged that youth assemblies be held in every Conservative congregation to provide an opportunity for religious and education leaders to meet with teenagers to discuss the problem of preparing them to meet the responsibilities of adulthood. As a second measure Dr. Davis recommended the formation of committees in all congregations to take up with local authorities the question of expanding modern Hebrew language courses in the public schools. The third aspect of the plan, he said, involved strengthening the "hitherto neglected" area of Jewish education on the high-school level.
